No introduction to Scotch could be complete without a trip west to Islay. Kilchoman may be the latest distillery on the island but its “Machir Bay” expression shows that it is up there with the best

Irish

We begin our Irish adventure at the oldest licensed distillery in the world. Bushmill's started making whiskey (legally) in 1608 and they still knock out great stuff to this day. The 10yr single malt has become somewhat of a bench mark for Irish whiskey. Heading off to the heart of Dublin, to a distillery that is really changing the face of Whiskey. Teeling 18yr is a spectacular dram from a whiskey maker that never disappoints. We round things up with a wonderful pot still expression from the Middleton Distillery. Red-breast 21yr is a decadent drop that is sure to put a smile on your face

Japanese

We start our Japanese journey at the Hakushu distillery, in the middle of the luscious, green and leafy forest surrounding the Akaishi Mountains in central Honshū. The picturesque surroundings of the distillery are truly reflected in the liquid itself, as this 12yr boasts a fresh and foresty flavour profile. We then journey onwards to the cradle of Japanese whisky. The place where it all began back in 1923, the Yamazaki distillery, as we sample this incredible and very sought after 12yr. We then finish our journey by checking in with the younger generation of inventive distillers, with a modern and exceptionally smooth grain whisky from the Chita distillery

Nordic Trail

It would feel strange not to start our quest in Denmark, and we do so at Thy. The No. 10 is a good marker of exiting things arising from Nordic whisky. We then head up to Finland. If anyone was going to make a good rye, you would expect the Fins to rank high on the list. Kyro Malt Rye is a full-bodied, delicious and frankly fascinating whisky. Our final destination is in the North of Sweden at the High Coast distillery. The Timmer Peat smoke is an excellent example of how smoke is being used in the Nordics

Almost Legal

Another year and this hat trick can buy their own whisky. We begin in the far east with the multi-award winning Nikka Takasuru 17yr. Nikka has diminutively put Japanese whisky on the map over the years, and after a drop of this you will understand why. This journey thereafter takes you to Scotland for a taste of Balvenie 17yr Double Wood. The last moody teenager is a little more spicy, Speyside's wonderful Craigellachie 17yr
